RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research program broadly focuses on how family and sociocultural contexts impact adolescent and young adult development. I do this through studies that address two lines of work. The first focus is understanding how discrimination based on skin tone (i.e., lightness/darkness of skin color) and race (e.g., being African American) influences sexual and romantic relationship behavior and health as well as family processes (e.g., parenting and racial socialization). My second is centered on understanding how factors from multiple ecological levels (e.g., family, religion, culture) interact to influence sexual and romantic relationship behavior and health, and identifying the underlying explanatory mechanisms.

Teaching Honors/Recognition

- 2019 Nominated for the Carter G. Woodson Staff Member/Faculty of the Year Award, NAACP Image Award, University of Missouri
- This award is dedicated to a current faculty/staff member at the University of Missouri who displays outstanding leadership skills, while helping students achieve academic excellence. While doing these tasks, the individual must also be involved in the campus community.
- 2018 Nominated for the Frankie Freeman Faculty of the Year Award, NAACP Image Award, University of Missouri
- Regarded as a “tireless agent of change” Frankie Freeman was a top-notch difference maker. Passing away at the age of 101 just over a month ago, Ms. Freeman was outlived by the impact she had on civil rights in this country. Being the first African American woman, to be appointed to the United States Commission of Civil Rights, Frankie Freeman investigated, exposed and negated discrimination throughout this country. She was also a practicing attorney for over 60 years. The past year has shown us how much progress we have yet to make, and turning a blind eye to her boost to get us this far would be a travesty. That being said, the Frankie Freeman award goes to a faculty member who has shown similar candor to Ms. Freeman. This individual has left an undeniable mark on Mizzou’s students, classrooms and beyond.
- 2018 Invited Faculty Panelist for the University of Missouri’s New Faculty Orientation Teaching Experience Workshop sponsored by the Office of the Vice Provost of Undergraduate Studies (Dr. Jim Spain)

- During one of the most contentious times on the University of Missouri’s campus in Fall 2015, following the resignations of the UM Systems President and MU-Columbia Chancellor, the New York Times published an article on the experiences of Black students on campus. A former student in my Black Families course highlighted the class as a way to improve race relations.
